

Mylinh Pham is currently the Assistant Executive Director at the Vietnamese Voluntary Foundation (VIVO) in San Jose. In this capacity, Ms. Pham oversees the programs at VIVO and works on funding development. Ms. Pham has been working with the refugee community since 1989. Last year, she was nominated by the Silicon Valley Women's Fund for a Women of Achievement Award in Santa Clara County. In addition, she produces and hosts a Vietnamese radio talk show called Nhan Hoa on 1430 AM. This talk show broadcasts to all of Northern California and address many topics that are of concern to the Vietnamese community.

Ms. Pham serves on the Federal Emergency Management Board and the Board of Trustees of the Regional Medical Center, a hospital serving primarily Hispanic and Vietnamese patients, where she shares and educates the board members on the needs of refugees and minorities in Santa Clara County.

Ms. Pham also serves as an advisory council member on the Council on Aging. This Council addresses the needs of the elderly community and Ms. Pham is committed to educating them on the many issues and needs involving the refugee senior population in Santa Clara County.